

U.S. General Services Administration

A Guide to Finding Government
Property
For Sale

The Government's largest online community for selling surplus property.

GOVSALES.gov

What is GovSales.gov?

GovSales.gov is a consolidated, citizen-friendly website that makes it easy for the public to find government assets for sale.

What is available on GovSales.gov?

Find land, houses, jewelry, cars, trucks, tools, computers and many other exciting items. Check out the website today.

Thousands of items, updated daily.

How does the website work?

It's so easy. Go to www.GovSales.gov and follow these simple steps.

1. Choose the category you would like to search.
2. Search and locate thousands of items for sale.
3. Select any item listed for sale and you're taken to the seller's website to bid or buy the item you want.

Want more info?

Go to www.GovSales.gov or email us at:
fedassetsales@gsa.gov

How do the Auctions work?

Citizens can locate online auctions or find listings for live auctions through the GovSales.gov website. The online auctions allow bidding on items over a period of time, typically seven days. The GovSales.gov website also advertises when live auctions take place across the country. Live auctions are regularly scheduled and are open to the public.

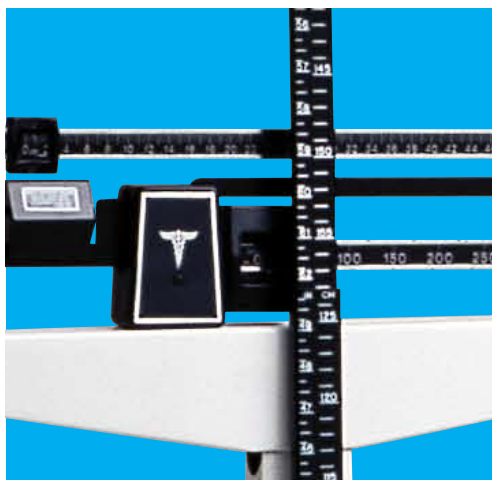

GovSales.gov is an integral part of the Government's commitment to going green. Reutilization is the ultimate in recycling.

Did you know?

You can find all kinds of property that the Federal government sells online.

Federal Asset Sales (eFAS)

U.S. General Services Administration

1800 F Street NW

Suite 1221

Washington DC 20405

email: fedassetsales@gsa.gov

www.gsa.gov

